

Are you working in the NSW SIGN AND GRAPHICS INDUSTRY?

If you are, obviously you have the job skills and experience to work effectively.

But

Do you have a nationally recognised industry qualification that aligns with your job skills?

No

Then now is the right time for you to consider getting CPC32111 Certificate III in Signage

This qualification is on the National Needs Skills list which gives it the highest level of assistance provided by the Federal government to those proceeding to obtain it.

The good news is that this assistance is available to you if you are currently working.

For an existing worker to obtain this qualification does require personal commitment and effort but the process can be structured to minimise disruption to family, work and any other requirements.

Here is some of the assistance available if you proceed

- There is up to $5500 available for Tools for your Trade
- Travel concessions and car registration rebates
- Subsidised gap training
- The Registered Training Organisation will structure the training to minimise disruption
- A representative from an Australian Apprenticeship centre will be available to assist you throughout
- And for your employer there is up to $7000 in financial incentives available

Interested but need more information so you can talk to the Boss ???
